INFORMATION

"On the evening of December 7, 1961, Mao Tse-tung called for a special conference at his official residence, inviting the key departmental heads of the Ministry of National Defense, including the 8 Chinese Nuclear warfare strategists who last fall were sent to Russia to observe and participate in the Soviet atmospheric Nuclear bombs and weapons tests held in the Soviet Arctic region.

The conference lasted until 4:30 A.M. the following morning.

The following subject matters were discussed and evaluated.

First: Soviet Russia's revised Nuclear warfare strategy; the 50 and 75 Megaton bombs and the anti missile-missiles as related to Red China's Nuclear warfare strategy.

Our report of December 1, 1961, submitted to U. S. Secretary of National Defense, revealed that Soviet Nuclear warfare strategists believe:

"A Nuclear war must be won in the first 24 hours.
The first blow must be with - 50 and 75 Megaton bombs.

"These 50 and 75 Megaton bombs can destroy as well as neutralize all the radar, electronic, radio and telephone systems for 15 to 24 hours.

The first blow must destroy at least 60 per cent of the enemy's retaliatory striking power."

Second: Russia's Underground Rocket Fortresses:

The 8 Chinese Nuclear warfare strategists told Mao Tse-tung -

"Their experiences and observations of their visit to Shostov, a tightly guarded rocket fortress in the Ural Mountain region.

The rocket fortress lies 500 feet underground and it was completed in April 1961.

According to the Soviet Missile experts that there are 5 rocket fortresses and that these fortresses were immune from any H bombs America now possesses."

Third: Red China's Rocket Missile Bases.

Our August 8, 1955 report to U.S. State Department revealed that:

"Soviet Russia is to give assistance in building a series of coastal rocket and guided missile bases from Manchuria to Central and South China.

Soviet Russia is to supply all the rocket and guided missiles.

Soviet Russia is to train the (Chinese) technicians in Siberia beginning 1956.

The bases are to be completed within 3 years."

LIFE MAGAZINE OF 7-13-1959 Issue.

It published Governor Averrill Harriman's interview with Soviet Premier Khrushchev: "Khrushchev said, Russia has shipped numerous rockets to Communist China and that these have been planted behind the coastline."

Fourth: "Mao Tse-tung's Warped Image of America."

During the conference Mao Tse-tung cited U.S. failure to occupy Communist Cuba and stressed the following points:

A. "America is morally and spiritually a defeated Nation.

B. "If America is so afraid to occupy Cuba right on her doorstep to avoid a Nuclear war, how can she face Sino-Soviet Alliance in Europe and Asia?

C. "Sino-Soviet Alliance now can face any and all military contingencies without fear of defeat."

End of report.
